Monroe Law Enforcement Community Outreach Program

Embedded Social Worker

Why Mesh Law Enforcement with Social Services?

- ▶ This concept started with Snohomish County and the Sheriff's Department and Everett Police Department
- ▶ The thought was: Law Enforcement continues to book the same people for misdemeanor charges and they continue to end up back on the streets and committing the same crimes. Something needs to change, but what?
- ▶ Law enforcement knows the legal side, but they don't know the resources. Social service workers know resources, but sitting behind a desk doesn't always reach those who are homeless. Why not work together?

What Does This Look Like?

- ▶ Embedded social workers ride along with law enforcement and go out to encampments
- ▶ Locate homeless “clients” who are using and/or have mental health concerns that are causing a barrier to being self sufficient
  - ▶ They are unable to function and their sole focus is survival
- ▶ Law enforcement makes sure it is safe and then social workers step in and educate the potential clients about services that can be provided. If they are willing to talk more, an appointment is made. If they are not ready, a rapport is started and a relationship starts

What Does This Look Like? Continued

- ▶ Once social services are offered, law enforcement then steps in with the enforcement piece. Business cards are given.
  - ▶ This is private property and you cannot stay here
  - ▶ The Diversion Center is offered when appropriate
- ▶ Initial Meeting
  - ▶ Sit down, buy them a meal and talk about their situation and educate about the program.
  - ▶ Schedule a Substance Use Disorder assessment and/or a mental health assessment
  - ▶ Transport them to the appointment
  - ▶ Embedded Social Workers obtain a copy of the assessments and work on locating inpatient treatment
  - ▶ Once a bed is secured, detox is scheduled to ensure there are no gaps
  - ▶ Upon successful completion of treatment, embedded social workers are able to secure clean and sober housing that is paid for with a voucher through Snohomish County Human Services for approximately 6 months

- ▶ One of the crucial pieces of this team is continual engagement and re-engagement
  - ▶ It can take a couple of years before someone is ready, but by having the relationship established, it is easier for them to reach out and take the step

Successes and Failures

- ▶ Sometimes people aren't ready for help
- ▶ Sometimes people slip back into old habits
